Are you curious to learn more about how eight powerful women are helping each other change the world? As Berrett-Koehler Foundation marks the midpoint of our current Action Learning cohort, we invite you to see and hear the 2020 Action-Learning Fellows' experiences and insights from four months of fun convening, community-building, and social justice. Then join us to "mastermind" about the next steps for their projects. The range of social change projects is wide. The indelible strand that connects the being and doing of this cohort is their desire to create a world that works for all. You may be surprised to see how their work intersects with yours.

These eight fellows, along with the BKF Weavers, have created a rich and trusty oasis where deep bonding is the default way of being with each other, providing sustenance to face the challenges of working through their projects. They are change-makers who are already creating impact in their local communities in the US and internationally. Now you are being invited to add your gifts and expand this collective learning experience, creating a wider synergic space where ideas and creativity emerge and flourish. Whether you join us in-person or virtually, February 29th will truly be a sneak peek into the realm of a better world for all, and possibilities for recalibrating and expanding the projects to create further impact. Let us give this marvelous cohort – and each other – the gift of being fellow travelers on the same journey.

A world that works for all takes a community to create.
